Halal Auditor & Halal Certification Body Agency Programs

By participating in our training program, Halal Auditor and Halal Certification Body Agency can expect to receive specialized training that is aligned with the latest Halal certification requirements in Indonesia

Training Program Description/ Background Target & Requirements

1

Competency of Halal Auditor based on National Work Competency Standard & Implementation of SJPH

Duration
6 days (3-4 hours/days)

Objective
Participants have the competency (skill, knowledge & attitude) as halal auditor based on Indonesia halal standard have the competency to implement Halal Product Assurance System (SJPH) and have comprehensive knowledge about Indonesia Halal Regulation

Halal Product Assurance System, also known as the Indonesia Halal Product Assurance System (SJPH), is a comprehensive set of procedures and practices implemented according to requirements by the Indonesia Halal Product Assurance Agency (BPJPH) to ensure that Halal products are produced and marketed in accordance with Islamic laws and principles. SJPH involves a series of steps that begin with sourcing raw materials and continue throughout the production and distribution process. By implementing a Halal product assurance system, other than to comply with halal regulations in Indonesia, businesses can expand their market reach and appeal to a wider consumer base while promoting ethical and sustainable business practices.

Halal auditors play a critical role in the halal certification process, ensuring that products and services meet the standards for halal compliance. To ensure proper halal certification, it is crucial that halal auditors have the required competencies in line with the work competency standard. Currently, the National Work Standard (SKKNI) No. 266, issued and implemented by the Indonesian Government in 2019, is the only globally recognized standard for halal auditor competency. This standard can be used for halal auditors working with foreign Halal Certification Bodies (HCBs).

Target: Auditors, Halal Certification Body Management Team, Consultants, Academicians, Industry Professionals & Quality Officers, Food Technologies and Nutritionists, Pharmacists, and Chemists

Requirements: According to the BPJPH Regulation, the requirements to become a halal auditor are to have at least a bachelor's degree in one of the following fields : food, food technology, chemistry, biochemistry, engineering, industry, biology, pharmacy, medicine, culinary arts, agriculture, nutrition, forestry, fisheries, veterinary medicine, animal science

Halal Auditor for Cosmetics Industry

ADVANCE LEVEL

Duration
2 days (3-4 hours/days)

Objective
Participants have the competency (skill, knowledge & attitude) as halal auditor specific for pharmaceuticals industry

Halal auditors should learn about the cosmetic industry because cosmetics and personal care products often contain ingredients derived from animal sources or alcohol, which may be considered non-halal according to Islamic laws.

Additionally, certain cosmetic ingredients may be considered haram (forbidden) due to their potentially harmful effects on human health. By understanding the specific halal requirements and guidelines for cosmetics, halal auditors can ensure that these products comply with Islamic principles and are suitable for use by Muslim consumers.

Material

a. Specific Criteria for cosmetics industry based on Indonesia Halal Product Assurance System (SJPH)      b. Audit process of cosmetics industry

Similar with program 1.

Additionally, it is recommended for participants to have prior experience as a Halal auditor and have attended Halal Auditor training

According to the BPJPH Regulation, the requirements to become a halal auditor with a cosmetic scope are to have at least a bachelor's degree in one of the following fields : chemistry, biochemistry, biology, pharmacy, medicine

By having knowledge about the pharmaceutical industry, halal auditors can help ensure that halal-certified healthcare products are widely available, and Muslim consumers can have confidence in the halal certification process.	Similar with program 1. Additionally, it is recommended for participants to have prior experience as a Halal auditor and have attended Halal Auditor training According to the BPJPH Regulation, the requirements to become a halal auditor with a pharmaceutical scope are to have at least a bachelor's degree in one of the following field : chemistry, biochemistry, pharmacy, medicine	a. Halal meat is obtained from permissible animals and is processed through slaughter methods that adhere to Islamic law. Ensuring that the slaughter process complies with Islamic principles is one of the responsibilities of a halal auditor. By combining expertise in Islamic Shariah-compliant slaughter standards and auditing techniques, a halal auditor is capable of examining the slaughter process in accordance with requirements. So, how can a halal auditor, particularly in a slaughterhouse, acquire the necessary competencies in halal requirements and regulations? The answer is by participating in this training program.	Similar with program 1. Additionally, it is recommended for participants to have prior experience as a Halal auditor and have attended Halal Auditor training According to the BPJPH Regulation, the requirements to become a halal auditor with a slaughtering scope are to have at least a bachelor's degree in one of the following field : veterinary medicine and animal science	a. Halal Certification Bodies must adhere to a comprehensive accreditation scheme to ensure their certification process is credible and transparent. In Indonesia, foreign Halal inspection agencies must follow the BPJPH accreditation scheme's guidelines for accreditation. Halal Certification Bodies (HCBs) must meet several criteria and requirements to cooperate with BPJPH to establish international cooperation in the form of mutual recognition of Halal certificates. By adhering to a comprehensive accreditation scheme and utilizing appropriate preparation documents for Halal accreditation based on Indonesia's Halal regulations, Halal Certification Bodies can ensure that their certification processes are credible, transparent, and compliant with relevant Halal standards.	Halal Certification Body Management Team	a. 6 <h3>Competency Of Syariah Board</h3> Duration 2 days (3-4 hours/days) Objective Participants have the competency (skill, knowledge &amp; attitude) as syariah board to establish laws for halal product	Having a Shariah board is necessary, other than as one of the requirements in the accreditation of Halal Certification Bodies (HCBs) from Indonesia's government through the Indonesia Halal Product Assurance Agency (BPJPH). It is also important because Shariah board deeply understands Islamic law and can ensure that the certification process aligns with Islamic principles. Without a Shariah board, there is a risk that the certification process may not fully comply with Islamic law, which could result in a loss of trust and credibility for the certifying agency among Muslim consumers. Therefore, having a Shariah board is crucial to ensure that the halal certification process is conducted in a way that is consistent with Islamic principles and meets the expectations of Muslim consumers.	Halal Certification Body Management Team Preferable: Syariah / Fatwa Board	a. introduction of Sharia Expert related to halal product b.
